"History looks different when the contributions of women are included."
-- The National Women's History Project

Teaching Packet

Overview:
The following material is assembled in hopes of “giving rise to women’s voices.” Its intent is to demonstrate a way that teachers and students can work together to further awareness of both historic and contemporary Muslim women. This guide can be used as four individual lessons, or it can be utilized to integrate themes and ideas.

Overall Objective of Teaching Packet:
To acquire attitudes which are essential for citizens of democratic pluralist societies, in particular intellectual honesty, open-mindedness, respect for truth, tolerance, acceptance of differences, empathy and civil courage.

CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.RI.5.8: Explain how an author uses reasons and evidence to support particular points in a text, identifying which reasons and evidence support which point(s).

Writing:
CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.W.5.1
Write opinion pieces on topics or texts, supporting a point of view with reasons and information.
CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.W.5.2
Write informative/explanatory texts to examine a topic and convey ideas and information clearly.
CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.W.5.4
Produce clear and coherent writing in which the development and organization are appropriate to task, purpose, and audience.
CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.W.5.7
Conduct short research projects that use several sources to build knowledge through investigation of different aspects of a topic.
CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.W.5.8
Recall relevant information from experiences or gather relevant information from print and digital sources; summarize or paraphrase information in notes and finished work, and provide a list of sources.
CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.W.5.9
Draw evidence from literary or informational texts to support analysis, reflection, and research.
CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.W.5.10
Write routinely over extended time frames (time for research, reflection, and revision) and shorter time frames (a single sitting or a day or two) for a range of discipline-specific

- Help learners apply key concepts such as time, chronology, causality, change, conflict, and complexity to explain, analyze, and show connections among patterns of historical change and continuity.
- Enable learners to identify and describe significant historical periods and patterns of change within and across cultures, including but not limited to, the development of ancient cultures and civilizations, the emergence of religious belief systems, the rise of nation-states, and social, economic, and political revolutions.
- Guide learners in using such processes of critical historical inquiry to reconstruct and interpret the past, such as using a variety of sources and checking their credibility, validating and weighing evidence for claims, searching for causality, and distinguishing between events and developments that are significant and those that are inconsequential.

People, Places and Environment

- Have learners describe how people create places that reflect culture, human needs, current values and ideals, and government policies.

Individuals, Groups & Institutions

- Provide learners with opportunities to examine various institutions that affect their lives and influence their thinking.
- Help learners to describe and examine belief systems basic to

Individual Development and Identity

- Assist learners in articulating personal connections to time, place, and social/cultural systems.
- Help learners to appreciate and describe the influence of cultures, past and present, upon the daily lives of individuals.
- Assist learners to describe how family, religion, gender, ethnicity, nationality, socioeconomic status, and other group and cultural influences contribute to the development of a sense of self.
- Have learners apply concepts, inquiry, methods, and theories in the study of human growth and development, learning, motivation, behavior, perception, and personality.
- Help learners to analyze the role of perceptions, attitudes, values, and beliefs in the development of personal identity and their effects upon human behavior.
- Have learners compare and evaluate the impact of stereotyping, conformity, acts of altruism, discrimination, and other behaviors on individuals and groups.
- Help learners understand how individual perceptions develop, vary, and can lead to conflict.
- Assist learners as they work independently and cooperatively within groups and institutions to accomplish goals.
Power, Authority, and Governance

- Enable learners to examine the rights and responsibilities of the individual in relation to their families, their social groups, their community, and their nation.
- Enable learners to describe the ways nations and organizations respond to forces of unity and diversity affecting order and security.
- Have learners explain conditions, actions, and motivations that contribute to conflict and cooperation within and among nations.
- Challenge learners to apply concepts such as power, role, status, justice, democratic values, and influence to the examination of persistent issues and social problems.

Global Connections

- Enable learners to explain how interactions among language, art, music, belief systems, and other cultural elements can facilitate global understanding or cause misunderstanding.
- Help learners to explain conditions and motivations that contribute to conflict, cooperation, and interdependence among groups, societies, and nations.
- Have learners analyze or formulate policy statements that demonstrate an understanding of concerns, standards, issues, and conflicts related to universal human rights.
Conceptual Essential Understandings:
• Connections between events of the past and present help us understand our world.
• Global societies are diverse, creating varied perspectives, contributions, and challenges.
• People respond to and resolve conflicts in a variety of ways.
• Analyzing multiple points of view allows the ideas and actions of individuals or groups to be more fully understood.

Content Understandings: Language Arts
• An author’s style and voice are revealed through diction, syntax, imagery, mood, and tone.
• Writing records experiences, clarifies thoughts, structures ideas and enables communication for a variety of purposes.

Content Understandings: Social Studies
• Civilizations leave an enduring legacy through ideas, traditions, knowledge, and discoveries that provide a foundation for advancement.
• History reflects the tension between the wants and needs of the individual vs. the wants and needs of the society.
• Religion is an institution that influences a nation’s priorities by providing guidelines about how human beings should morally and ethically interact.

Essential Questions:
• How can challenges make one stronger?
• Where can one find strength to get through challenges?
• What can we learn from challenges?
• How does a writer use word choice and imagery to get across ideas, affect our perspective, or affect our mood?
• How does the style differ between nonfiction and fiction writing?
• What can I learn from the past?
• In what ways am I connected to the past?
• How can studying the past help me?
• How has the world changed and how might it change in the future?
• What does it mean to be civilized?
• How are all religions similar?
• How does belief influence action?
• How do our personal stories reflect varying points of view and inform contemporary ideas and actions?
• How has communication changed over time? How have these different methods shaped a culture?
• What would motivate a person to help other people?
• Why do some people become leaders and others don’t, even though they may have the qualities of a leader?
Historical Significance: Aminah Assilmi was a popular speaker, community activist and a powerful Muslim woman. Her social justice activism spanned US divorce courts and Bosnian war crimes. She brought the Eid stamp to the US Postal Service and with it the first official recognition of American Muslims’ holidays.
Lesson Plan: Aminah Assilmi
An American Pioneer

Historical Context:
Civil rights movements for labor workers, Black Americans and women characterized the early twentieth century. Laws and amendments were passed that led to change and reform; however, much work remained to be done.

By the mid-twentieth century, women still did not have the same rights as men. At work, women had fewer opportunities than men, and when they had the same job as a man, they did not receive the same pay. The court system favored men over women in cases of divorce and custody, and banks would not open accounts for a woman without approval from her husband. The Feminist Movement rose out of this framework, and women organized to fight for political, social, and economic equality with men. Aminah Assilmi was a product of this movement, and her life’s work reflected her commitment to women’s rights and equality.

Lesson Plan Objectives:
• To understand how personal trials can help a person grow in ways they may not foresee.
• To define and understand the various meanings of the vocabulary words.
• To read, comprehend, and summarize the important events in Aminah Assilmi’s life.

Activities:
1. Warm Up
   What tools allow you to deal with hardships or disappointments? (Brainstorm strategies on the board.)

2. Activities
   a. Discussion: What is a pioneer? What would one have to do to be considered a pioneer today?
   b. Read the article “Aminah Assilmi: A Modern American Muslim Pioneer”, Student handout A1, either as a class, in small groups, or in pairs. Use the comprehension strategies of retelling and questioning OR the student observation strips (attached) while reading.
   c. Center Activities
      Activity A: Vocabulary station with dictionaries
      Activity B: Individual: Complete the text-to-text, text-to-self, text-to-world chart.
      Activity C: Design your own postage stamp.
      Activity D: Answer Guided Questions.
3. Wrap Up

Journal writing: Going back to the brainstorming on the board about tools to deal with hardship, which of these tools did Aminah Assilmi use, if any? Are there any different tools you would have suggested to her? Have you learned any new tools from her?

Differentiation:

Scaffolding Instruction

- Student Article Version A 1.1
- Vocabulary Handout Version A in advance
- Choice of Activities
- Grouping Strategies

Higher-Level Learners

- Life Road Map: What things affect our journey? (Stop signs, red lights, green lights, yellow lights, dead ends, speed bumps, detours, highways, tolls, rest stops, bridges, mountains, construction... ) Create common traffic signals that represent whether the event moved Aminah Assilmi forward (yellow or green light), yielded her progress (yield sign), stopped her growth (stop sign) or was a challenge (bumpy road sign). Construct life maps or time lines in small groups or individually for Aminah Assilmi.

Map Aminah’s journey on a large piece of butcher paper. The journey should represent important decisions and events that have shaped her life. Students should use symbols that were created in the warm up as they are constructing Aminah’s Life Road Map.

- Group Skit/Interview: Create groups of 4. List some of the important events in Aminah’s life. Then choose one pivotal moment and develop a skit or interview around it. Clearly show the problem and your solution. Make sure each person has a speaking role. Remember to use a professional demeanor when presenting the skit – stay in character.

Extensions

Students can add details to their maps about Aminah Assilmi, including factors that may have influenced their decisions such as historical events, important relationships, goals, beliefs, and aspects of human behavior (fear, conformity, prejudice, etc.). As students work on their “map,” you might allow them to walk around the room to survey what their peers are doing. This can be a great way for students to generate new ideas about how to represent an individual’s life as a journey.

Aminah Assilmi
An American Pioneer
(1945-2010 C.E.)

Late 20th - Early 21st Century

North America: United States
Aminah Assilmi was born Janice Huff in 1945. Before she became a Muslim, she was a wife, mother, student, business owner and journalist. She accidentally signed up for the wrong class in college and ended up in a class with a lot of Arab students. Uncomfortable with her classmates, she knew she had a choice to make: Should she drop the class and lose her scholarship? Should she remain in the class? Should she ignore them? Should she try to teach them about Christianity?

Choosing to remain in the class, Aminah decided to speak to her peers about Christianity. When her attempts failed, she asked a fellow student for a Quran, in hopes of finding errors in it. Unable to find contradictions in the Quran, Aminah studied other Islamic books. The more knowledge she gained, the more she began to change. After much study and thought, Aminah converted to Islam and started wearing the hijab, which in the 1970s was not a common sight!
Aminah is best known for a stamp!

Aminah organized a contest and had children submit their artistic designs. Then the best design was chosen and the “Eid Greetings” stamp became an official stamp of the United States Postal Service!

Aminah fought for better laws for mothers in the United States and fought to help the women of Bosnia during the Bosnian war.

Aminah was also an excellent speaker. She traveled all over to speak about many issues, including women’s rights. She was even invited to speak at a famous conference of world religions in Barcelona, Spain. In 2009 Aminah was recognized as one of the 500 most influential Muslims in the world.

Just one year later, on March 5, 2010, Assilmi died at the age of 65 in a car accident near Newport, Tennessee. She was a true modern pioneer.
Aminah Assilmi was born Janice Huff in 1945. She grew up in Oklahoma and eventually got married and had children. She was a strong Christian and became a preacher in the Southern Baptist church.

When she was in college in 1977, she met some Arab Muslim students in her acting class. This was the first time she had ever met anyone who practiced Islam. Since she believed that Christianity was the only correct religion, she tried to convert them. When they kindly turned her down, Ms. Assilmi began a serious study of Islam in order to better convince her new friends of its errors.

Ms. Assilmi read many books about Islam and learned that the students’ beliefs were similar to hers. She stopped trying to convert them and kept learning. One day, a sheikh knocked on her door and offered to answer her questions. After long conversations and much self-reflection, Janice Huff converted to Islam. She became Aminah Assilmi, naming herself after the mother of Prophet Muhammad.

Aminah Assilmi became very active in the Muslim community in America. Throughout the 1980s and early 2000s, she traveled all around the world to speak on many issues, including Muslim women’s rights. She became very famous.
for her gentle yet impassioned speeches. Ms. Assilmi was even invited to speak at the very famous Parliament of the World’s Religions Conference in Spain in 2004.

Aminah met a young boy who wished the United States Postal Service had a postage stamp about the Muslim holiday, Eid. She decided to help make his dream come true. Ms. Assilmi organized a drive for Muslim children to send in their designs for a postage stamp commemorating Eid. The best design was chosen and Muslims had a stamp! This was an important milestone for Muslims because it was the first time that an Islamic religious holiday was recognized by the United States Postal Service. In 2011 President Obama made her stamp a ‘forever’ stamp, meaning it would always be valid for postage.

Because of all these efforts and more, in 2009 the Royal Islamic Strategic Studies Centre named Aminah Assilmi one of the 500 most influential Muslims in the world.

Tragically, Ms. Assilmi died in 2010 at the age of 65 in a car accident. She left behind an amazing legacy. Muslims still remember her speeches, her stamp and her happy personality today. She was a real American pioneer.

Student Handout A6: Writing skills

Interview a partner and write his/her biography. Tell details about his/her life and show his/her accomplishments.

Find out and take notes on the following:

- Personal History: Who, when, and where are answered here.

- Experiences that make this person important

- Characteristics this person embodies

- How she/he helps others and works for the community

- Things you admire about this person

Use your computer to write the biography.
Unit Two: Nana Asmā’u
(1793-1864)
Leader, Educator, and Poet
Africa

Historical Significance: Nana Asmā’u was a leading scholar and educational activist of the nineteenth century in Africa. She was a prolific writer and creative thinker, building an educational system of enormous import and impact. Her father was the Caliph (leader) of the Sokoto Caliphate, and both supported and promoted his daughter in her work. Nana Asmā’u cared deeply for the future of the people of Africa and worked hard during her life to ensure that women were educated so that the next generations would be educated as well.
Lesson Plan 2: Nana Asmā’u
Leader, Educator and Poet

Brief History:
The history of West Africa is rich with culture, but during the 19th century it was also a time of change and upheaval. To bring stability to the region, Shehu Usman Dan Fodio conquered the lands that are today Nigeria and Cameroon and unified them into the Sokoto Caliphate, which lasted until 1903, when the British colonized their land. His goal was to educate and uplift his citizens, and he began with his own family. So in the midst of these great challenges and immense change came a wise and scholarly woman who led an educational revival through poetry and creative pedagogy; Shehu Usman Dan Fodio’s daughter, Nana Asmā’u.

Lesson Plan Objectives:

- To promote understanding of how women have made a difference in history.
- To experience how oral traditions have always been a significant source of learning.
- To appreciate cultural diversity by discussing contributions of Muslim women in history.

Activities:

1. Warm Up
   Memory Recall: Since birth, we have been taught songs to help us memorize things. Can you think of any? [HINT: Think of songs you learned in nursery school, pre-k, kindergarten, or even early elementary school!]

   Sing some of the songs together or have the students perform their rhymes and songs.

2. Activities
   a. Read and Learn: Read the article “Nana Asmā’u: Leader, Educator and Poet” as a class, in pairs, or in small groups.
   b. Vocabulary: On the vocabulary handout provided, students should write down their predictions of the meanings for the terms provided using context clues. Later, they should look up the actual meanings of the terms using a computer or a dictionary.
   c. Centers:
1. Terms: Match definitions and terms
2. Maps: Place a map of Africa on the table. Students will use it to complete the blackline map included in the student handout section.

3. Reading: Have a number of nursery rhymes available on the table. Students can sort them into piles of ‘memorized’, ‘sort of remember’ and ‘don’t know it’.

4. Phonics: Place dozens of words on the table that are at level, above level and below level for the students. Have them match words that rhyme.

d. Comprehension: Students answer the guided questions in pairs or individually and discuss the answers with the group.

e. Be a Jaji! Split the class into different groups and place each in a different area of your classroom. Choose one person from each group to be a jaji and teach him or her a poem. The jaji must then return to his/her group and teach the group the poem. The entire group that memorizes the poem first “wins”!

Use the following poem for the activity. Find more poems like this at: http://www.canteach.ca/elementary/songpoems31.html

Parts of a Sentence

A sentence, sentence, sentence
Is complete, complete, complete
When 5 simple rules it meets, meets, meets.
It has a subject, subject,
And a verb, verb, verb.
It makes sense, sense, sense
With every word, word, word.
Add a capital letter and end mark, mark,
Now our sentence has all its parts.
f. Acrostic Poems: Nana Asmā'u often wrote acrostic poems. Use the following link to present acrostic poems in the class:
http://www.readwritethink.org/files/resources/interactives/acrostic/

Ask students to write their own Acrostic poems using Student Handout B6.

3. Wrap up: Use sticky notes and write one question on each one. Stick the sticky notes on the wall. In a large group – read the questions and discuss.

Differentiation:

Scaffolding Instruction
- Vocabulary Handout in advance
- Choice of Activities
- Grouping Strategies
- Give these students the Be a Jaji poem in advance to memorize, or a written version rather than just learning it orally.

Higher-Level Learners

Becoming Nana Asmā'u: Compose an easy-to-memorize poem about something new you recently learned. Teach that poem to one student. See if they can memorize it and teach it to other students. Keep count of how many students memorized your poem.

Nana Asmā’u
Leader, Educator, Poet
(1793-1864 C.E.)

19th Century

West Africa: Nigeria
Meet Nana Asmā’u [NANA ASMA-OO], the daughter of a famous African leader, Shehu Usman Dan Fodiyo.

Born in West Africa, Nana Asmā’u was well educated and a talented writer. She went on to become a famous poet, teacher, and scholar. She was also very devout, spending much of her time in reflection and worship.

When her father united Nigeria and Cameroon into the Sokoto Caliphate between 1804 and 1810, she worried about all the women and children who needed an education.

Well versed in literature from around the world and fluent in Arabic, Fulfulde, Hausa, and Tamacheq (the languages of West Africa and its deserts), Nana Asmā’u understood the value of learning.

But the African terrain made it difficult to reach the illiterate public. Villages were far from one another, and the pathways between them were dangerous.
There was also the question of books. She could not send her prized manuscripts all over the countryside. She only had one copy of each!

Nana Asmāʿu thought creatively and invented a new way of ‘going to school.’ First she wrote easy-to-memorize poetry that taught history, religion, admonitions, and the principles of the caliphate.

Then, Nana Asmāʿu chose women from all around the caliphate to be leaders and teachers, called jajis. She taught these jajis her poems.

The jajis returned in pairs to their villages to teach the women and children. To mark their leadership role, each jaji was given a large straw hat called a malfa, with a red cloth tied around it.

Slowly, they were able to change their communities, one person at a time, by teaching the poems that they had learned from Nana Asmāʿu.

To this day, the jajis still exist, traveling across lands while teaching and sharing the poems and wisdom of Nana Asmāʿu.

Indian Subcontinent

Historical Significance: Razia Sultan was leader of the Delhi Sultanate in the thirteenth century. The Sultanate was the beginning of Muslim sovereignty in India and it is thought that the Urdu language emerged during this time as a result of Persian, Turkic and Arabic influences. The fusion of Hindu and Muslim cultures expressed itself in music, literature, and clothing.

The Delhi Sultanate remained in control until 1398, one hundred years after Razia's death.
Lesson Plan: Razia Sultan
The First Muslim Woman Head of State

Brief History:
During the 13th century, the Indian Subcontinent was undergoing numerous changes. It was a time known as the early modern era. Turkic peoples and Afghans invaded parts of Northern India and conquered large areas of northern India. The Delhi Sultanate was established with Razia’s father Iltutmish, and the resulting synthesis of Indian and Muslim cultures left lasting monuments in architecture, literature, religion and fashion. Upon her father’s death, the first female leader and warrior, Razia Sultan, stepped up to lead her people during a time of immense turmoil.

Lesson Plan Objectives:
• To define and understand the terms; stereotypes and discrimination
• To dispel stereotypes.

Activities:
1. Warm up:
   Who Does She Think She Is? (See attached handout)
   • Either project the image of the woman in hijab on the board/screen or make copies of the worksheet and distribute to students.
   • Ask students the questions on the worksheet and have them write down their answers on a sheet of paper or on the worksheet. Discuss.

2. Activities
   a. Read the article “Razia Sultan: The First Muslim Woman Head of State” as a class, in pairs, or in small groups.

   b. Define and explain the term “stereotype”. Discuss what stereotypes women have to face. Why was there so much conflict about Razia becoming the sultan after her father?

   c. Stereotyping Activity: Take about 10 minutes to complete individually or in pairs. Discuss the answers as a class. [Answers: Chinese-Indian-Black-Native American-Arab-Mexican-White]
d. Vocabulary handout: Crossword puzzle. Use the terms in bold in the article and the clues to solve the crossword puzzle. (recommended: www.wordcentral.com)

3. Wrap up
   - Go back to the Who Does She Think She Is? activity. Reveal Cassidy Herrington’s usual way of presenting herself and read her bio (included).
   - Explain to the class the social experiment she conducted (read her article on her experience of wearing hijab for a month at the link provided under her bio).
   - Discuss how stereotypes do not give a full picture or narrative of who a person really is, and how it actually promote discrimination and make it harder to get to know one another.
   - Discuss how students have felt stereotyped.

Differentiation:

Scaffolding Instruction
- Vocabulary Handout in advance
- Choice of Activities
- Grouping Strategies
- Told as a story

Higher-Level Learners
- Research a more modern female head of state or statesperson (eg. Benazir Bhutto, Madeline Albright, Isabel Peron, Maria Corazon Aquino, Angela Merkel, etc.), and compare her experiences with female stereotyping and discrimination, if any, with Razia Sultan’s, especially before and during her time as head of state.
- Research how public perception of Muslims, including stereotyping and discrimination, has changed in the United States in recent times. Prepare a multimedia presentation to share with the class.

Extension
Students study the Preamble of the U.S. Constitution, focusing on the themes of equality, freedom and opportunity. Students then draft and sign a manifesto pledging to fight discrimination, call out bullying, and not give in to stereotypes by getting to know people on an individual basis.

Razia Sultan
The First Muslim Woman Head of State
(1205 - 1240 C.E.)

13th Century

South Asia: Indian Subcontinent
The 13th century was filled with tales of wars and cruel rulers. One story involves a slave who becomes king and his unique daughter who outshines her brothers and becomes the first female sultan.

Iltutmish was the slave warrior of the Sultan of Delhi in India. His bravery helped him quickly climb through the ranks in the army and eventually become sultan himself. He had a very stable government. Sultan Iltutmish became known as an excellent leader, especially when he stopped the enemy Mongol forces from entering Delhi.

Razia, daughter of Iltutmish, was also a wise and talented administrator. When their father travelled, it was Razia who took care of business while her brothers were busy with other pursuits. Iltutmish admired his daughter; her good character, bright mind, and skilled actions. So he nominated Razia to become Sultan after him. His advising wazirs were angry and did not want the sultan to be a woman. Her brothers were surprised and fought their father’s decision. Immediately after Iltutmush’s death, Razia’s brother seized the throne from her. But he proved himself incompetent within seven months, was killed, and Razia took the throne.

Because she was an experienced politician, Razia was quick to retake control and bring peace back to her land. She insisted people call her Sultan instead of Sultana (the usual form of the word for a woman), because she wanted to display power. She did not want her enemies to think she was just the wife of the leader. She wanted them to know she was the leader.

She was skilled in the art of combat and appeared in battle dressed like a soldier. She was able to crush one rebellion after another. She began to offer high government positions to anyone who had the skills and was hard working, instead of the old pattern of giving powerful positions only to Turkic nobles. She was careful to judge people by their merit, not their race, ethnicity or gender. Of course the nobles were not pleased with these changes.

Razia tried to make things better for the local minorities. She met with the common people regularly and listened to their demands with care. She was also able to encourage trade and build infrastructure, such as roads and government services. Razia wanted to revoke the jizya (tax in exchange for military protection) collected from people of other faiths, but these taxes were a major source of income for the nobles. They felt Razia had gone too far.

Many rebelled against her. First the governor of Lahore started an uprising. But when she marched against him, he fled and quietly apologized. Next Altunia, the governor of Bhatinda rebelled. This time the Sultan’s army was not successful in defeating him and Razia was captured. However, she was able to come to a truce and keep her position by marrying Governor Altunia. Meanwhile, her brother Bahram claimed she was no longer Sultan because of her defeat and seized the throne for himself. Razia and her husband marched toward Delhi to take back the crown. She was again defeated and was forced to flee to North India where she and Altunia were attacked and killed by some local people.

Bahram remained the new king for only two years before he was kicked off the throne for being a bad ruler. Much, much later, India would see other female rulers, but Razia Sultan will always be remembered for being an exceptional leader and for being the first.

Unit Four: Fatima al-Fihri
(unknown-880 CE)
Philanthropist and Activist
Arabs/ North Africa/ Morocco

Historical Significance: Fatima al-Fihri is the founder of al-Qarawiyyin, the oldest existing and continually operating educational institution in the world. Some claim it is the first and longest running university. The mosque and university are still open and operational today with students attending from all over the world.
Lesson Plan: Fatima Al-Fihri
Founder of the Oldest University in the World

Brief History:
At this time, North Africa had just recently come under Arab and Muslim rule. The al-Fihri family settled in Northern Morocco where Fatima would have a significant impact on the development of the city of Fes. Fatima’s new mosque and university would prove to be an important center of learning for Christian Europe and the Muslim world.

Objectives:
• To have students take a stance and justify it.
• To challenge students to think of solutions to problems by examining how individuals handle similar situations and apply strategies.
• To make students more aware of societal issues.

Activities:
1. Warm Up
   a. Brainstorm a list of issues society faces on the board (education, homelessness, veteran needs, mental health, unemployment, hunger, pollution, health care, etc.).

2. Activities
   a. Read the article “Fatimah Al-Fihri: Founder of the Oldest University in the World” as a class, in groups or individually.

   b. Vocabulary Handout

   c. Either in the class or outside on the playground, set up a continuum of opinions: Strongly Agree - Agree – Neutral – Disagree – Strongly Disagree. (See attached sheets) Looking at each of the issues brainstormed on the board, ask students which of these they would support financially if they were given a large amount of money by going to the appropriate paper representing their views. Ask a few students to justify their stance each round.

   d. Design your dream school: If you were given a chance to design the best school ever, what would you put into it? Make a list then create a blueprint of your design. Be sure to include classrooms, special features, earth-friendly ideas for energy, outdoor classroom space, etc. Don’t forget to name your school, as well!

3. Wrap up: Discussion

   a. What skills or talents must Fatima al-Fihri have possessed to take on the huge task of building a university?
   b. What talents do you have?
   c. What are you passionate about?
   d. What can you offer with your own talents to make a change in society and help others?

Differentiation:

- Grouping Strategies
- Reading Comprehension Questions:
  1. Where was Fatima al-Fihri’s family originally from?
  2. What is a mosque?
  3. How was Fatima able to pay for the construction of the mosque?
  4. What is al-Qarawiyyin?
  5. Why was the university so important?

Higher-Level Learners

Design Your Dream School Activity- Part 2:
- Math Connection. Ratio/Proportions: Choose an appropriate scale to translate your ideas onto your blueprint (and later, a model). Make the dimensions of your blueprint according to the scale you chose. Calculate the area needed to build your school.

- Art Connection. Build a model of your school design OR create a sculpture for the school lobby that represents a value evident in Fatima Al-Fihri’s life.

Founder of the Oldest University in the World
(b. unknown - d. 880 C.E.)

9th Century

Arab North Africa: Morocco
In the early 800’s, a noble family migrated west from Tunisia to the city of Fes, Morocco. Hoping to become successful in the big city, the al-Fihri family joined a large migration to this promising foreign land. Mohammed al-Fihri soon became a respected and wealthy merchant there. He made sure his children had excellent educational opportunities, including his two daughters Fatimah and Mariam. These two sisters became women of deep thought and faith as they grew up in this exciting time under what was called the Idrisid monarchy.

Islam was only a couple centuries old during their remarkable era. They were ahead of their time, looking for ways to advance their people and community for the good of society.

Then on a very sad day, their father died. A few days later, the sisters learned that he had left them with a sizeable inheritance. Instead of using the money on themselves, they decided to spend the money in a way that would benefit others for years and years to come.

Mariam used her money to build the grand al-Andalus mosque.
Fatima initiated a great project to build the largest mosque in the world. She employed local workers and used local materials. Fatima had a well dug next to the construction project so the workers would have plenty of water to drink. She directly oversaw the process of construction and showed great interest and zeal in the building’s intricate architectural design.

The project started in Ramadan, the Muslim fasting month, and Fatima kept on fasting every day until the project was complete - more than two years!

After construction began, Fatima decided to expand her vision and add an institute of learning. Like wildfire, Fatima’s selfless intention sparked an educational revolution. Al-Qarawiyyin became so popular that students had to pass an entrance exam to earn a place in the university. It began by teaching religion but then included other subjects such as grammar, rhetoric, logic, medicine, mathematics, astronomy, chemistry and humanities.

The university also holds a great library, which is considered to be one of the oldest in the world. It holds many valuable Islamic manuscripts, preserved for over a 1,000 years.
The University of Al-Qarawiyyin helped transform Fes into a major intellectual, cultural, and spiritual center for the Muslim world and the Christian West.

Thanks to the sacrifice, efforts, and diligence of Fatima al-Fihri, the University of Al-Qarawiyyin is still thriving and functioning more than a millennium later. We can also take a lesson from her selfless giving and meticulous planning. Hers is an ongoing legacy, that we all continue to benefit from today.
